(Scalable rewards or scalable repeatability)

finance and business people often talk about and spek scalable rewards. Scalable profits. increased revenues cost less to deliver than eurrent revenue. Selling copies is one good example. Music ormovies or software. Scalable rewards are sort of like the lottery. Many bands make vecords. One or two make big cash. Scalable repeatability is the number of people who can duplicate your business in their local area like pizza or bread. Lots of local variations profit is limited to the work you can do as an individual. If the service is needed, its easy to replicate an a small local scale.

a menu is a listing of services. a customer places an order, you perform the service, collect the fee and then part ways in order to continue to make money, you must continue to provide service. When was the last time you had a really good free lunch? is your value to society based in a product or in your process?
